

BARESANA

White grape variety well established in the province of Bari. It has an average bud-burst period, and it ripens about 160 days later. The cluster is medium-large, weighing averagely 400 g with large, not very thick-skinned ovoid berry; very suitable for transportation; consistent pulp and neutral taste. It is a vigorous vine that favours expanded training systems and long pruning. The yield is average.

CULTIVATED AREA IN ITALY

YEAR	1990	2000	2010
HECTARES	455	341	280