

BRANCELLAO

Vine of Galician and northern Portugal origin, also called Brancelho or Alvarelhão. It has a small, cylindrical, moderately compact cluster with small, elliptical berries. It is a vine of average vigour and yield, as well as average-late bud-burst period, and average-early ripening period. The sugar content and total acidity are also average. It produces ruby-red coloured and aromatic wines, with a light taste. It is also used to produce rosé wines.

CULTIVATED AREA IN SPAIN

YEAR	1990	1999	2009
HECTARES	3	-	20

CULTIVATED AREA IN PORTUGAL

YEAR	2000	2011
HECTARES	122	-